"Lawyers for Democracy" Initiative

The Democratic Path in Egypt during the Second Quarter of 2019

Before we begin:

The Democratic Path is a report that is launched by the Arabic Network for Human Rights Information (ANHRI) every three months, i.e. quarterly, starting from 2018. In previous years, ANHRI used to publish the report on a monthly basis through the "Lawyers for Democracy" initiative it launched in 2014 to monitor the democratic process in Egypt.

In addition to the monthly reports issued to monitor the state of democracy, ANHRI issued annual reports to monitor the democratic path in 2014, 2015, 2016, 2017 and 2018, which can be accessed through the "Reports" section on ANHRI's website by clicking on the following link:

Introduction:

The second quarter of this year witnessed Egypt's High Elections Commission announcing the results of the referendum on the constitutional amendments- most prominent of which is the article pertaining to presidential term limits extending president's time in power to six years- saying that over 88% of voters, out of the illegible voters cast their votes in the referendum, had approved the constitutional changes. The last month of the reporting period also witnessed the death of former President Mohamed Morsi in a courtroom during one of his trial sessions in the case known in the media as "spying for Hamas". During this period as well, the Egyptian authorities arrested a number of journalists along with a former parliamentarian for allegedly participating in what they called "Hope Plan" to topple the Egyptian state coinciding with the commemoration of the June 30 Uprising. Protest events didn't stop during the second quarter of 2019, when 158 protests had been organized by different political powers; the Muslim Brotherhood (MB) and the National Alliance to Support Legitimacy (NASL) were at the forefront with 68 protests, followed by the social and labor protests with 49 protest activities.

Military trials of civilians also continued in the second quarter of the year; as among the 66 trials held during this period, there were 7 military trials for 1,655 citizens.

Violations of media freedoms have not ceased during this period, with 52 cases of violations recorded, most notably pertaining to media coverage ban which amounted to 29 cases during the period covered by the report.

The details of the state of the democratic path during the second quarter of 2019 are outlined, in numbers and percentages, as follows:
